

Latasha Waters

Wife, mother, activist, and entrepreneur Latasha Waters has proven worthy of the many hats she bears while still fulfilling each task attached to them. As the owner of “The Queens Storehouse” and Executive Director of Black and Brilliant Events, she nurtures the beauty of culture, community, and union.

Earning her Degree in Human Services, she was able to gain and now skillfully apply her extensive knowledge of Program Development & Management, Problem Solving, Group Dynamics and Community Building & Engagement- just to name a few. Not only does the young entrepreneur enjoy on the clock matters, but she’s also dedicated her time to volunteer work with Acenda Care, formally known as Robins Nest in support of Task Assistance. Latasha has set her sights on the development and functioning of urban communities that may lack representation. Having already been involved with community events and meetings with appropriate leaders, she has high hopes of furthering her advocacy by sitting on City Council in her near future.

There’s no work without play with this hands on and devoted mother/wife whereas she is always sure to keep family first. When this on-the-go mother of two, is not building her brand or supporting a community, she can be found spending quality time with her husband Tyrone and sons Rafael (14) and Tytan (8) or other family and friends, reading, listening to some of her favorite music or maybe even drinking special teas.

Latasha has proven busy but also reliable, devoted, and honorable. She is fully committed to her cause and is always prepared to conquer new heights.
